

Wilson and I had a wonderful time visiting with Wilson's mom and family in south Brazil for a few weeks this month. While you were having record lows, we had record highs and took advantage to enjoy walks along the beautiful beaches of Santa Catarina early in the mornings, take dips in the ocean, go on special outings with family and just put our feet up some before beginning the activities of a new year!

Crazy Times

Shortly after we arrived, we heard some GREAT news about the church plant in São João from Maurilio, our coworker. He took a small team to continue building the church and hold another service. The team from Ataláia do Norte went also. We are helping a pastor from Ataláia, which is much closer to São João than Benjamin, to slowly work his way into the leadership role for this new church plant.

The group was able to construct one more wall of the church, leaving only the front wall to be finished. The women that have been attending the services told the teams to leave the clean up to them this time. To their surprise, the women not only cleaned the church, they decorated it and had already prepared a wonderful drama and choreography for the children to present during the evening service! The most amazing thing was that the woman who trusted in Christ as her Savior the week before we left was the one who was instrumental in planning these special surprises!

We're back in action once again and are already preparing the mission boat for another ministry trip to river villages with a team from Texas. Another ministry team from IL will be coming mid-March and we will be working together to build another church in one village and serve through children's and women's ministries.

We count it a tremendous privilege and blessing to minister together with YOU! ☺ Thank you for your faithful prayers and support. We pray God is working in your lives each and every day, growing you in His grace, surrounding you with His love, upholding you with His strength and working through you with His power!

All our love and hugs,
Wilson and Lori
